Bowl Championship Series

The Bowl Championship Series (BCS) is a five-game arrangement for post-season college football that is designed to match the two top-rated teams in a national championship game and to create exciting and competitive match-ups among eight other highly regarded teams in four other games. It has been undeniably successful in achieving those goals. Additionally, it has provided more access to the major bowls, more television exposure, and more post-season revenue than ever before.

The five bowl games are the Tostitos Fiesta Bowl, the FedEx Orange Bowl, the Rose Bowl Game presented by Citi, the Allstate Sugar Bowl, and the BCS National Championship Game that is played at one of the bowl sites. The 2010 Citi BCS National Championship Game will be played in the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, California

The BCS is not an entity. Instead, it is an event managed by the 11 NCAA Football Bowl Subdivision conferences--all of them "BCS Conferences"--and the University of Notre Dame through a series of contracts among bowls and television networks. The conferences are the Atlantic Coast, Big East, Big Ten, Big 12, Conference USA, Mid-American, Mountain West, Sun Belt, Pacific-10, Southeastern, and Western Athletic.

Representing their constituents, the conference commissioners and the Notre Dame athletics director make decisions regarding all BCS matters, in consultation with an athletics directors advisory group and subject to the approval of a presidential oversight committee whose members represent all 120 Football Bowl Subdivision (formerly known as Division I-A) programs.

The BCS games are operated by community-based organizations in each of the host cities. In addition, there are 29 other post-season bowls, which are managed independently by entities in 26 cities around the nation and in Canada. All bowl games provide meaningful season-ending opportunities to teams.

This robust system of many post-season bowl games offers rewards for teams and places a great premium on the regular season. Football weekends are an important ingredient in the overall college experience—going well beyond simply what occurs in the athletics department. For many institutions, a significant amount of the revenue that supports all athletics programs is generated by regular-season football. Regular-season football weekends also permit universities, alumni, and other supporters of higher education to build and maintain close and lasting relationships. A thriving bowl structure helps ensure that the regular season remains strong and vibrant.

While seeking to preserve and enhance college football's unique traditions, the BCS arrangement aims to bring some sense of finality to each season by pairing the top two teams in a national championship game. The top two teams were matched in bowl games infrequently before the BCS, when conferences were contractually obligated to certain games and there was no flexibility to attempt to match the top teams.

Fox Sports will televise the Tostitos Fiesta Bowl, FedEx Orange Bowl, and Allstate Sugar Bowl at the conclusion of the 2009 regular season. ESPN/ABC will televise the Rose Bowl presented by Citi and the Citi BCS National Championship Game.

SCHEDULE OF GAMES, JANUARY 2010

The schedule for January 2010, is as follows:

January 1 – Rose Bowl Game presented by Citi (Pasadena)
January 1 – Allstate Sugar Bowl (New Orleans)
January 4 – Tostitos Fiesta Bowl (Glendale)
January 5 -- FedEx Orange Bowl (Miami)
January 7 – Citi BCS National Championship Game (Pasadena)

REVENUE

Before 1998, only the teams--and their conferences--that participated in the “major” bowl games received revenue from those games. That changed with the advent of the BCS. In the first 11 years of the BCS arrangement, more than $120 million was distributed to conferences that do not have an annual automatic berth in one of the BCS bowls.

THE BCS IS WORKING

The BCS has succeeded in meeting its goals. The nation’s No. 1 and No. 2 teams met only eight times in bowl games in the 57 seasons between 1936 and 1992, when the “bowl coalition” (a predecessor of the BCS) was created. No. 1 and No. 2 have met 12 times in the 18 years since 1992. In the 11 previous years of the BCS, the coaches’ poll No. 1 and No. 2 have met eight times.

THE BCS IS NOT...

..... a playoff system. It is nothing more than an attempt to match the No. 1 and No. 2 teams within the bowl system and to create exciting matchups in four other bowl games.

“BCS CONFERENCE”

The term “BCS Conference” is one of the most misused in sports. All 11 Bowl Subdivision (formerly Division 1-A) conferences are “BCS Conferences” because the arrangement is managed by all 11 of them.

COMMUNITY BENEFITS

The bowl system provides significant charitable, civic and economic-impact benefits for their local communities.

The total economic impact in the host cities from the five BCS games in January 2010 is expected to be more than $1.2 billion.

AUTOMATIC QUALIFICATION, AT-LARGE ELIGIBILITY AND SELECTION PROCEDURES

1. The top two teams in the final BCS Standings will play in the National Championship Game.

2. The champions of the Atlantic Coast, Big East, Big Ten, Big 12, Pac-10, and Southeastern Conferences will have automatic berths in one of the participating bowls each year through the 2013 regular season.

3. The champion of Conference USA, the Mid-American Conference, the Mountain West Conference, the Sun Belt Conference, or the Western Athletic Conference will earn an automatic berth in a BCS bowl game if either:

A. Such team is ranked in the top 12 of the final BCS Standings, or

B. Such team is ranked in the top 16 of the final BCS Standings and its ranking in the final BCS Standings is higher than that of a champion of a conference that has an annual automatic berth in one of the BCS bowls. No more than one such team from Conference USA, the Mid-American Conference, the Mountain West Conference, the Sun Belt Conference, and the Western Athletic Conference shall earn an automatic berth in any year. (Note: A second team could be eligible for at-large selection.)

If two or more teams from those conferences satisfy the provisions for an automatic berth, then the team with the highest finish in the final BCS Standings will receive the automatic berth, and the remaining team or teams will be in the pool of teams eligible for selection by the bowls as at-large teams.

4. Notre Dame will have an automatic berth if it is in the top eight of the final BCS Standings.

5. If any of the 10 slots remain open after application of provisions 1 through 4, and an at-large team from a conference with an annual automatic berth for its champion is ranked No. 3 in the final BCS Standings, that team will become an automatic qualifier, provided that no at-large team from the same conference qualifies for the national championship game.

6. If any of the 10 slots remain open after application of provisions 1 through 5, and if no team qualifies under paragraph

No. 5 and an at-large team from a conference with an annual automatic berth for its champion is ranked No. 4 in the final BCS Standings, that team will become an automatic qualifier, provided that no at-large team from the same conference qualifies for the national championship game.

AT-LARGE ELIGIBILITY

If there are fewer than 10 automatic qualifiers, then the bowls will select at-large participants to fill the remaining berths. An at-large team is any Division I-A team that is bowl-eligible and meets the following requirements:

- A. Has won at least nine regular-season games, and
- B. Is among the top 14 teams in the final BCS Standings.

No more than two teams from a conference may be selected, regardless of whether they are automatic qualifiers or at-large selections, unless two non-champions from the same conference are ranked No. 1 and No. 2 in the final BCS Standings.

If fewer than 10 teams are eligible for selection, then the bowls can select as an at-large team any Football Bowl Subdivision team that is bowl-eligible, has won at least nine regular season games and is among the top 18 teams in the final BCS Standings, subject to the two-team limit noted above and also subject to the following: (1) If any conference has two or more teams in the top 14, then two of those teams must be selected; and (2) from the teams ranked 15-18, a bowl can select only a team from a conference that has fewer than two teams in the top 14.

If expansion of the pool to 18 teams does not result in 10 teams eligible for selection, then the pool shall be expanded by blocks of four (4) teams until 10 eligible teams are available, subject to the two-teams-per-conference limit noted above and also subject to the following: (1) If any conference has two or more teams in the top 14, then two of those teams must be selected; and (2) from the teams ranked 15 or lower, a bowl can select only a team from a conference that has fewer than two teams in the top 14.

Relative to the two preceding paragraphs, all teams ranked in the top 14, other than those from conferences that already have had two teams selected, must be included in the bowl selection.

Note: In order to participate in a BCS Bowl game, a team (1) must be eligible for post-season play under the rules of the NCAA and, if it is not an independent, under the rules of its conference; and (2) must not have imposed sanctions upon itself prohibiting participation in a post-season game for infractions of the rules of the NCAA or the rules of its conference.

TEAM-SELECTION PROCEDURES

The bowls will select their participants from two pools: (1) automatic qualifiers, all of which must be selected; and (2) at-large teams, if fewer than 10 teams qualify automatically. The following sequence will be used when establishing pairings:

1. The top two teams in the final BCS Standings will be placed in the National Championship Game (hereinafter "NCG").
2. Unless they qualify to play in the NCG, the champions of selected conferences are contractually committed to host selected games:

Atlantic Coast Conference—Orange Bowl
Big Ten Conference—Rose Bowl Game
Big 12 Conference—Fiesta Bowl
Pac-10 Conference—Rose Bowl Game
Southeastern Conference—Sugar Bowl

3. If a bowl loses a host team to the NCG, then such bowl shall select a replacement team from among the automatic-qualifying teams and the at-large teams before any other selections are made. If two bowls lose host teams to the NCG, each bowl will get a replacement pick before any other selections are made. In such case, the bowl losing the No. 1 team gets the first replacement pick, and the bowl losing the No. 2 team gets the second replacement pick. If the Rose Bowl game loses both the Big Ten and Pac-10 champions to the NCG, it will receive two replacement picks.

(For the games of January 2011 through 2014, the first year the Rose Bowl loses a team to the NCG and a team from the non-automatic qualifying group is an automatic qualifier, that non-automatic qualifying team will play in the Rose Bowl.)

A bowl choosing a replacement team may not select:

- A. A team in the NCG, or
- B. The host team for another BCS Bowl.

Further, when two bowls lose host teams, then the bowl losing the No. 1 team may not select a replacement team from the same conference as the No. 2 team, unless the bowl losing the No. 2 team consents.

4. After steps 1, 2, and 3 have been completed, any bowl with an unfilled slot shall select a team from the automatic qualifiers and/or at-large teams in the following order for the games played in 2010:

A. The bowl played on the date nearest to the National Championship Game will pick first—in 2010, the FedEx Orange Bowl, January 5;

B. The bowl played on the date second-nearest to the National Championship Game will pick second—in 2010, the Tostitos Fiesta Bowl, January 4;

C. The bowl hosting the game that is played in the time slot immediately after the Rose Bowl game will pick third—in 2010, the Allstate Sugar Bowl.

The selection order noted in Paragraphs 4-A, B and C has been as follows:

January 2007 games: Sugar, Orange, Fiesta
January 2008 games: Orange, Fiesta, Sugar
January 2009 games: Fiesta, Sugar, Orange

D. The selection order for the games in 2010 through 2014 will be as follows:

January 2010 games: Orange, Fiesta, Sugar
January 2011 games: Sugar, Orange, Fiesta
January 2012 games: Fiesta, Sugar, Orange
January 2013 games: Fiesta Sugar, Orange
January 2014 games: Orange, Sugar, Fiesta

All teams earning automatic berths must be selected.

5. After completion of the selection process as described in Paragraph Nos. 1-4, the conferences and Notre Dame may, but are not required to, adjust the pairings, taking into consideration the following:

A. Whether the same team will be playing in the same bowl game for two consecutive years; and/or

B. Whether two teams that played against one another in the regular season will be paired against one another in a bowl game; and/or

C. Whether the same two teams will play against each other in a bowl game for two consecutive years; and/or

D. Whether alternative pairings may have greater or lesser appeal to college football fans as measured by expected ticket sales for the bowls and by expected television interest, and the consequent financial impact on rights-holding television networks and the bowls.

The pairings may not be altered by removing the Big Ten champion or the Pac-10 champion from the Rose Bowl.

TIE-BREAKING PROCEDURES

The following steps may be used to resolve any ties in the Standings after computation is carried out to full decimal points.

1. Look to head-to-head result;
2. If the tie is not resolved by No. 1, then evaluate results against the highest ranked common opponent in the BCS Standings;

3. If the tie is not resolved by No. 1 or No.2, then calculate tied teams place in BCS Standings using all six computer providers (i.e., do not throw out the high and low computer rankings) and the Harris and Coaches polls;

4. If the tie is not resolved by No. 1, No. 2, or No. 3, then draw.

STANDARDS FOR FUTURE BCS AUTOMATIC QUALIFICATION

The champions of the Atlantic Coast, Big East, Big Ten, Big 12, Pac-10, and Southeastern Conferences will have annual automatic qualification for a BCS game through the 2013 regular season, based on mathematical standards of performance during the 2004-2007 regular seasons.

The 2008-2011 regular seasons will be evaluated under the same standards to determine if other conferences will have annual automatic qualification for the games after the 2012 and 2013 regular seasons. The champions of no more than seven conferences will have annual automatic berths.

If the BCS continues under the same or a similar format, conferences will be evaluated on their performances during the 2010-2013 regular seasons to determine which conferences will have automatic qualification for the bowls that will conclude the 2014-2017 regular seasons.

The evaluation data include the following for each conference: (1) the ranking of the highest-ranked team in the final BCS Standings each year, (2) the final regular-season rankings of all conference teams in the computer rankings used by the BCS each year, and (3) the number of teams in the top 25 of the final BCS Standings each year.

Conference agreements with bowls will continue. The Pac-10 and Big Ten champions will host the Rose Bowl if their teams are not in the BCS National Championship Game. Likewise, the Southeastern Conference champion will host the Sugar Bowl, the ACC champion will host the Orange Bowl and the Big 12 champion will host the Fiesta Bowl.

THE BCS STANDINGS

The Harris Interactive College Football Poll, USA Today Coaches Poll and computer rankings each constitute one-third of the BCS Standings. To derive the three percentages, each team is assigned an inverse point total (25 for No. 1, 24 for No. 2, etc.).

The two poll percentages are calculated by dividing each team's point total by a maximum 2850 possible points (Harris) and 1525 possible points (USA Today). The computer rankings percentage is calculated by dropping the highest and lowest ranking for each team, and then dividing the remaining total by 100 (the maximum possible points).

The BCS average is calculated by averaging the percentage totals of the Harris Interactive Poll, USA Today Poll, and the computer rankings. The teams' BCS averages are ranked to produce the BCS Standings.

The six computer ranking providers are Anderson & Hester, Richard Billingsley, The Colley Matrix, Kenneth Massey, Jeff Sagarin, and Peter Wolfe. Each computer ranking provider accounts for schedule strength within its formula.

The BCS Standings are used to:

- * Determine the two teams that qualify to play in the BCS National Championship Game;

- * Determine any other automatic qualifiers; and,

- * Establish the pool of eligible teams for at-large selection.

The BCS Standings are released for eight consecutive weeks each season, including the final Standings on selection Sunday. The National Football Foundation compiles and releases the Standings each week.

HARRIS INTERACTIVE COLLEGE FOOTBALL POLL

The Harris poll was first used during the 2005 regular season. To provide the initial pool of potential panelists, each conference submitted the names of 30 qualified individuals; Harris Interactive randomly selected 10 panelists from among the names submitted by each conference. Notre Dame submitted a list of six qualified individuals, from which Harris randomly selected three. Army and Navy together submitted a list of three qualified individuals, from which Harris selected one.

When a person leaves the panel, the conference that originally nominated the individual nominates three others to take the spot. Harris Interactive then randomly selects the replacement.

The Harris Poll is released for ten consecutive weeks each season, including the final poll on selection Sunday.

IMPORTANT 2009 DATES

Tuesday, November 24--First Team Selection Teleconference

Tuesday, December 1--Second Team Selection Teleconference

REVENUE DISTRIBUTION FOR 2010 BCS GAMES

Teams and conferences participating in Bowl Championship Series games receive revenue primarily from two sources – television and the host bowls.

A total of approximately $1.8 million will be paid to Football Championship Subdivision (formerly NCAA Division I-AA) conferences to support the overall health of college football. Also, independent institutions Army and Navy each will receive $100,000 for making their teams available to play in BCS games if selected.

Nine percent of the net revenues from the arrangement, which was approximately $9.6 million in 2008-09, is guaranteed in aggregate to Conference USA, the Mid-American, Mountain West, Sun Belt, and Western Athletic Conferences for their participation in the arrangement. When a team from one of those five conferences plays in a BCS bowl game, the conferences will receive an additional nine percent of net revenues. When more than one team from those conferences play in the BCS bowl games, those conferences will receive an additional $4.5 million for each additional team.

Notre Dame is guaranteed 1/66th of the net revenues after expenses, or approximately $1.3 million. Notre Dame will receive $4.5 million when its team is a participant.

The share to each conference with an annual automatic berth in the BCS (ACC, Big East, Big 12, Big Ten, Pac-10, and SEC) is approximately $18.3 million. When a second team from one of those conferences qualifies to play in one of the games, that conference will receive an additional $4.5 million.

(...just a sampling from many affirmative comments about the current post-season football system...)

“Obviously, a true playoff gives you a national champion. But my answer has always been, it’s for the kids. And bowl games are for the kids. If you’re in the playoff, you spend all week at your place, and if you get beat, you’re done. You never experience a new place; you never see new things. For me, the key to the bowl games is you get to experience another place; you get to learn about another program. A lot of our kids never get to go to the West Coast.

“In all this arguing, we tend to forget about the kids, about their academic load and everything else that comes with being a student-athlete. I have a tendency to stick with the bowls.”

---TCU Coach Gary Patterson, Sporting News, July 7, 2009

“I don’t want to sniff a playoff. The bowl system is the best thing that college football has going for it. There’s a reason why college football’s popularity has never been bigger.”

---Matt Hayes, Sporting News, May 5, 2009

“(College football) is the only sport where every single game truly matters, where you can’t afford to take your foot off the pedal for even one week. Were there a playoff, the Gators -- which, like the Cardinals, clinched their division early (Nov. 8) -- could have tanked their last three regular-season games without jeopardizing their title hopes in the slightest.”

---Stewart Mandel, Sports Illustrated, January 22, 2009

“However, at the BCS meetings in Hollywood, Fla., last spring, several conference commissioners expressed their reservation that a plus-one would be the first step down an inevitable path toward an eight- or, eventually, 16-team playoff. And that’s when the college regular season as we know it goes kaput.”

---Mandel, ibid

“... as with every other single-elimination sport, sooner or later, the playoffs would become the only thing that matters. As it is today, fans of all but the most woeful teams retain a vested interest until the very end due to the prospect of a bowl berth. With a playoff in place, fans would inevitably lose interest once their teams were eliminated from contention. Even if the bowls stayed in business, they’d become to football what the NIT is to basketball.”

---Mandel, ibid

“For 100-plus years, it’s been engrained in college football fans that every week matters, and that teams are judged on their season-long performance. The prospect of a 9-7 team (or 9-4 team, as the case may be) playing for the national championship flies in the face of the sport’s entire tradition. The single most common argument college playoff advocates make is that: ‘Every other sport does it.’ What they never bother to consider is that perhaps there’s a reason college football is different than those other sports.”

---Mandel, ibid

“If I am a college president or administrator and am thinking pragmatically, I would run away and hide from any playoff proposals. (A playoff) would be the most impractical, counterproductive and risky thing the NCAA could do. I became more convinced of that than ever, watching the bowl schedule unfurl the past two weeks.”

---Mark Purdy, San Jose Mercury News, January 3, 2009

“They Said It”

“Watching the NCAA Tournament has given me a greater appreciation for the current college football system because the same intensity provided during the three weeks of the NCAA Tournament is provided every week during the college football season.”

---Landry Locker, Daily Toreador, March 24, 2009

“The current BCS and poll system is, in essence, a democratic system. Based on the collective wisdom of informed people, a consensus is reached. While I do understand that there is a computer component, anyone can also look at the breakdown of the percentages and see that the voters hold the most sway.”

---Alexander Meske, CollegeFootballResearch.com, April 23, 2009

“Even those longtime BCS critics like myself have to finally admit that the imperfect system has perfectly transformed the sport from a Saturday afternoon cookout to a national obsession.”

---Bill Plaschke, Los Angeles Times, November 6, 2008

“Those who long for a college football playoff system need to understand, thanks to the BCS, there already is one. It's called the regular season.”

---Plaschke, ibid

“You want college football to adopt March Madness? It already has three delightful months of it -- every game counts, every play counts, the most important regular season in sports.”

---Plaschke, ibid

“Division I-A college football has the greatest regular season in all team sports, and a playoff system would ruin that distinction.”

---Jason Whitlock, Kansas City Star, November 23, 2008

“(The BCS) has been great for college football. It's not perfect, but it has been great for college football.”

---Florida coach Urban Meyer, December 7, 2008

“The regular season is the main course, not some overpriced appetizer. There still might be a tidier way to settle the championship issue on the field, but don't let it come at the expense of the 12-game meat of the schedule. Want a playoff? It's taking place right now.”

---Jeff Shain, Miami Herald, October 3, 2008

“A playoff would present as many problems as it does solutions. A playoff is politically unfeasible unless the regular season is shortened, which is financially unfeasible. A playoff could suck the life out of the regular season.”

---Ivan Maisel, ESPN.com, December 1, 2008

“As much as coaches beat up the BCS, and I'm one of those that have been critical, I do think it's much better than the system we had when it got in place. There are a lot of really good things about the BCS, and it's got everybody talking about it right now. It's what college football wants. It wants attention, good attention, and everybody is sitting down with a pencil and a piece of paper trying to figure out how this crazy stuff is going to work.”

---Texas coach Mack Brown, to Jerome Solomon of the Houston Chronicle, November 10, 2008

“The part of the sport to savor is not the finale but the regular season. In college football, every game has the fierce urgency of now. The uncertainty of what lies at the end makes the 12-game gantlet all the more nerve-wracking.”

---Ben Curtis, New York Times, November 22, 2008

“They Said It”

The BCS provides a “common-sense solution for a seemingly intractable problem that plagued the country for decades.”

---Curtis, ibid

“I coach high school football in Texas, and every year only one team ends up happy in your classification. You go the playoffs, the first round, the second round, the quarterfinals — oh how exciting for everyone. But you look at it, as soon as one of those teams gets beat, they’re just forgotten.

“Now I know people say how much it works for basketball, but I think football is different. Is it really better for the kids to have a playoff or for at least half of them to go to a bowl game and say, ‘We won the Gator Bowl, the Cotton Bowl, whatever bowl.’ You have USC and Penn State going to the Rose Bowl, whoever wins that game — that’s something those kids can talk about the rest of their lives. They finished by winning something with a name, a tradition. They got to play in the Rose Bowl, not just the quarterfinals.

“People would have you believe, oh, the playoff would be perfect, ideal, but I think that if we did it, in about six years, people would say, ‘Oh my God, what have we done? We’ve ruined a perfectly good season’s ending for a whole lot of teams for the benefit of one.’ Is that really better for the kids?”

---Sam Harrell, father of Texas Tech quarterback Graham Harrell, to Harvey Araton of the New York Times, December 9, 2008

“Isn’t this fun? Is the way we do it really that bad? Think about it, we rarely argue about the national champion, just about the teams that ought to be talked about before we decide the national champion.”

---Jerome Solomon, Houston Chronicle, November 10, 2008

“People fear the so-called worst-case scenarios that would ruin the world of college football as we know it, and every year we have to tell you to calm down. Every year college football gets better and better. Those worst-case scenarios are overblown. We waste time talking about them. They almost never happen.”

---Solomon, ibid

“The decision-makers for postseason college football have to consider much more than the entertainment aspect of the sport, and in weighing all the factors carefully and repeatedly, we have concluded that the format we currently enjoy is best.”

---Big 12 commissioner Dan Beebe, to Chris Dufresne, Los Angeles Times, November 20, 2008

“The overriding point playoff supporters miss is that a playoff changes everything. There’s nothing neat and tidy about an eight-team playoff.

“If you take the six big conference winners and use some sort of formula or committee similar to the NCAA basketball tournaments to select the two at-large spots, how does that work? Does the team perceived to be the best of the (non-automatic qualifying) schools automatically get a selection?

“If so, that leaves only one at-large berth to a runner-up. If Texas, Texas Tech and Oklahoma all finished the season with one defeat, how would that choice be made? And how do you compare those teams to a one-loss Alabama?”

“They Said It”

“To avoid these kinds of questions, you have to go to a 16-team tournament, and at that point, the regular season has lost its unique quality. If that many teams are postseason-bound, then you completely alter the emotions that spilled out of Texas and Texas Tech fans in the final dramatic plays late Saturday night.

“College football is different from every other sport in that it doesn't always provide a bow on a neatly tied package at the end of the year. I will gladly sacrifice that in order to maintain the integrity of autumn Saturday afternoons and nights. Those are nothing less than the best days in sport.”

---Tim Cowlshaw, Dallas Morning News, November 7, 2008

“But here's the thing: since college football adopted the BCS as a convoluted, inexplicable method of staging a national championship game, the sport has never been more successful.”

---Ivan Maisel, ESPN.com, May 2008

“This amazing season does not prove, once and for all, the crying need for a playoff system, as some have argued. It's exactly the opposite. This season is proof that a playoff would only muck up something that works, albeit works chaotically. In college football, the known is the unknown. That's what makes it unique.”

---Rick Morrissey, Chicago Tribune, December 5, 2007

“A playoff system would destroy college football as we know it.”

---Allen Barra, Wall Street Journal, November 29-30, 2008

“The argument we hear most—that college football is the only sport that doesn't have a playoff—is the best argument for keeping things the way they are. What's wrong with being unique? Why do people want college football to be like everything else?”

---Morrissey, Chicago Tribune, November 21, 2008

“There is no regular season that delivers like college football. In movie parlance, it's an unpredictable two-hour thrill ride. Amid all the fun, we have people yelling that the sport has to change. It needs a playoff system. Why? So the casual fans who are confused by the BCS and the angry columnists who write about college football three times a year can get finality. So the next time someone complains about a ‘BCS mess’ or you hear the inane ‘the BCS shouldn't have a ‘C’ in it’ comment, roll your eyes, shake your head and smile. You know better.”

---Teddy Greenstein, Chicago Tribune, December 1, 2007

CREENTIAL POLICY FOR THE BOWL CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES GAMES

To ensure that all qualified media agencies have the appropriate access, these policies have been developed by the 11 Football Bowl Subdivision commissioners, the Notre Dame athletics director and the BCS bowl games. The policies will be strictly enforced at the BCS National Championship Game. At the other BCS bowl games, the host media coordinators may authorize additional credentials for all areas except the sidelines, if space allows.

Requests for all working media credentials for all Bowl Championship Series games shall be directed to the host media director. The deadline for applying is the second Friday after Selection Sunday (which in 2009 is December 18).

A "press agency" for purposes of these criteria shall mean a daily or weekly publication, cable system, radio or television station or network requiring immediate news coverage. "Immediate news coverage" for purposes of these criteria shall mean that the editorial, audio and/or visual deadline for the bowl game action occurs no later than 48 hours after the competition at the site has been completed.

Membership in a writers or broadcasters association does not automatically qualify an agency or individual for credentials.

An individual holding a credential is subject to removal from the stadium for violating BCS credential policies.

Except for television camera operators, a credential may be issued only to an authorized, full-time, salaried representative of, or a representative who regularly and customarily performs services for, the agency submitting the request. Credentials are not transferable.

Subject to limitations of space and at the host media director's discretion, credentials at all sites shall be assigned in accordance with the following policies:

PRINT

Separate publications sharing common ownership may not be combined for purposes of meeting circulation or other criteria.

1. A daily agency with circulation greater than 50,000, a weekly with circulation greater than 500,000 or a monthly with circulation greater than 750,000 will be identified as "national media" and will qualify for credentials. Press agencies may receive credentials according to the following circulation requirements:

Daily Circulation	Credentials
50,000 - 99,999	one seat
100,000 - 199,999	two seats
200,000 - 299,999	three seats
300,000 - 499,999	four seats
500,000 - 699,999	five seats
700,000 and above	six seats

Weekly Circulation	Credentials
500,000 - 3 million	two seats
3 million and above	three seats

Monthly Circulation	Credentials
750,000 - 3 million	two seats
3 million and above	three seats

An agency that has covered all of a participating institution's regular-season games will be entitled to additional seats if space is available.

2. An agency that does not meet Criterion No. 1 qualifies for credentials if a full-time staff member has covered all of the participating institution's regular-season games. Such an agency can receive one more than the number of credentials it used for a majority of the institution's regular-season games, plus additional seats if space is available.

A specialty publication that covers college football and does not meet the criteria listed above may be eligible for one credential at the discretion of the host bowl's media director.

3. The Associated Press and the primary newspaper(s) that provide daily coverage at the site of the bowl game may receive a maximum of eight seats.
4. At the host media director's discretion, a maximum of two credentials may be issued to reporters representing the non-sports side of the major newspaper that covers all regular-season games of the participating institution.
5. At the media director's discretion, a maximum of two credentials may be issued to reporters representing the non-sports side of the major newspaper in the host city.
6. Credentials may be issued to a maximum of three individuals certified by the director of athletics or designated representative of each participating institution, who will be the sole representatives of all media organizations affiliated with such institution and all media organizations whose coverage primarily is directed by such institution and its activities.

STILL PHOTOGRAPHY

Sports editors shall request all photography credentials. Most media agencies will be limited to a maximum of two credentials.

Subject to limitations of space, credentials for photo staff members shall be assigned to agencies requiring immediate news coverage in accordance with the following priorities:

Photographers

1. A maximum of four photographers, certified by the director of athletics or designated representative of each participating institution, who will be the sole representatives of all media organizations affiliated with any such institution and all media organizations whose coverage primarily is directed at such institution and its activities.
2. Each institution's athletics department may be represented by a maximum of three photographers.
3. The primary press agencies at the host site of a Bowl Championship Series game that cover college football on a regular basis may receive a maximum of four credentials.
4. The Associated Press may receive a maximum of 12 credentials. Sports Illustrated and USA Today each may receive a maximum of six credentials. Reuters may receive a maximum of four credentials. The Sporting News and ESPN The Magazine may receive a maximum of three credentials. National photo services and agencies such as Wire Image and Getty Images may receive a maximum of two credentials at the discretion of the host media director.

5. A participating institution may receive four credentials for media agencies that do not meet the minimum daily or weekly circulation requirements. These agencies shall be certified by the director of athletics or designated representative of the participating institution to have staffed at least 80 percent of its games throughout the season.
6. A press agency with a minimum daily circulation of 350,000, a weekly circulation of 500,000, or a monthly circulation of one million may receive one credential.
7. A specialty publication that covers college football and does not meet the criteria listed above may be eligible for one credential at the discretion of the host media director.
8. For access to the sidelines, photographers must wear vests provided by the bowl.

A media entity requiring credentials for immediate news coverage may be granted credentials for couriers, editors and/or technicians subject to the media coordinator's discretion.

TELEVISION

(For all purposes in Nos. 1 through No. 5 in this section, a crew is defined as no more than four individuals, including one photographer.)

1. A television station or regional cable network from the locale of the Bowl Championship Series game may be represented by a maximum of two crews. See No. 8 below for the definition of a crew.
2. A television station or regional cable network from the locale of the participating institution, which has staffed all of the institution's regular-season games, or a conference's television network (e.g., Big Ten Network), may be represented by a maximum of two crews.
3. A regional television network that airs a nightly sports show and covers all of a participating team's games during the regular season may be represented by one crew.
4. Each division (i.e., the sports, news, entertainment and affiliate divisions) from a national television network or cable system that originates a daily sports news program (e.g., Fox, ABC, CBS, NBC, ESPN, CNN) may be represented by one crew. The NFL Network may be represented by one crew.
5. A television station in a market area estimated to have a minimum of one million U.S. television households the previous year by the A.C. Nielsen Company may be represented by one crew.
6. At the discretion of the host media director, no more than two credentials may be authorized to other news services that have news and sports programming.
7. Each participating institution may be represented by a minimum of one crew for a "coach's show."

RADIO

1. National radio networks may be authorized to have one credential at the discretion of the host media director.
2. A maximum of two credentials (one media and one limited access) may be assigned to a radio station that regularly covers college football games and has a daily “sports talk” program in a market area representing at least one million radio homes.
3. Two credentials may be assigned to a radio station in the geographic area of (1) the host city of the game or (2) a participating team that regularly covers college football games (i.e., full-time staff members attend games and file reports) and airs six or more sports reports each day.
4. One media credential may be assigned to each of the following radio entities: ABC, AP, CBS, CNN Radio, Echlin Sports Service, ESPN Radio, Fox Sports Radio, NBC, National Public Radio, Sirius/XM Satellite Radio, Sporting News Radio, Sports Byline USA, USA Radio Network, Voice of America, and Westwood One.
5. A radio network that will originate a live play-by-play broadcast is entitled to the number of individuals it used to originate games during the most recently completed regular season. Entities that produce national radio broadcasts under rights assigned through the national television rightsholder shall be limited to a maximum of eight credentials.

ONLINE MEDIA

1. A maximum of two credentials may be issued to the BCS website and to the web sites of the television network that holds rights to broadcast the game.
2. One credential may be issued to an online agency that (1) registers at least one million unique users per month in each of the 12 months before the game and (2) covers collegiate football daily.
3. The official web site of a competing institution, as designated by the school’s sports information director, may receive a maximum of two credentials in addition to the institution’s credentials noted elsewhere in this policy.
4. A print, radio or television agency will not receive more credentials than the number provided for elsewhere in this document. An agency may allot one (or more) of the credentials to its online entity.
5. An online entity that does not meet the other criteria herein qualifies for credentials if a full-time staff member has covered all of the participating institution’s regular-season games. Such an entity can receive one more than the number of credentials it used for a majority of the institution’s regular-season games, plus additional seats if space is available.
6. An online entity may receive a credential only if its own full-time staff members write an overwhelming percentage of that site’s material.
7. Online entities will not receive photography credentials.

8. An online service that is recognized as an outlet intended primarily for the purpose of delivering news related to the recruitment of student-athletes does not qualify for credentials.

AGENCIES NOT ELIGIBLE

Credentials shall not be issued to the following:

1. Persons solely for the purpose of writing or gathering material for books;
2. Representatives of syndicated television or cable programmers who are not producing programs for immediate news coverage (i.e., to air within 24 hours);
3. Telephone reporting services;
4. Entities normally identified as "tout sheets," and other publications devoted solely to gambling;
5. Scouts from professional teams; (Instead, the bowls will offer to sell tickets to the professional league office if requested and if tickets are available, with the understanding that the professional league will distribute the tickets to the teams as it wishes.)
6. Agencies that normally provide specific services for a media agency (e.g., scores) if many of its clients have been accredited to staff the event.

BCS INTERVIEW POLICIES

News conferences will be conducted during the week of each game (see the schedule of events) and also immediately after each game. The host media coordinator will have the authority to designate and require any student-athlete to attend any news conference.

The media coordinator designated by the BCS Group will work with the host bowl to assign a designee to facilitate the postgame news conferences.

GAME DAY

Locker Rooms. The locker rooms will be open to the media for a minimum of 30 minutes after the post-game cooling-off period ends, provided media representatives are present the entire time. Student-athletes who do not play in the game may depart earlier.

The head coach has the option to allow representatives of the national television rights holder into the locker room before the game and during the cooling-off period after the game.

Cooling-Off Period. A “cooling-off period” has been set aside for the coach to be with the student-athletes in the locker room after each game. The period for the losing team begins when the coach enters the locker room immediately after the game. The period for the winning team begins after the conclusion of the trophy presentation. The period will be 20 minutes for the winning team and 10 minutes for the losing team. A coach may shorten the cooling-off period but may not extend it. The coach and student-athletes must report to the interview room after the cooling-off period ends.

“Selected Media” Policy. Except for the national television rightsholder as noted in the “locker rooms” section above, no interviews may take place during the cooling-off period. If a coach permits one media representative to enter the locker room before the cooling-off period has ended, the locker room will be open to all other media representatives desiring access.

PRACTICES

Each institution has the option of having its practices in the locale of the bowl open or closed to the media.

For those institutions choosing the closed option, a 15-minute period during a minimum of two practices at the designated practice site must be open to the media. The 15-minute period will begin at the end of pre-practice stretching and warm-up drills. The team may not designate its first practice nor its final walk-through. No interviews will be conducted during the open portion of the practices; media will stand on the sidelines and may photograph the first 15 minutes of the practice.

The head coach and selected student-athletes will be available to the media after the practice two days before the game (i.e., January 2 for a January 4 game). If the bowl does not conduct a media day, then six to eight different student-athletes shall also be made available after practice on an additional day.

Each institution has the option to make coaches and student-athletes available in conjunction with other practices and shall notify the media of any such availability in advance.

NEWS CONFERENCES DURING GAME WEEK

Each bowl will conduct news conferences during the week of the game. The bowl shall propose a schedule of news conferences to the institutions; the bowl and the institution shall agree upon the schedule not later than December 15. Once the bowl and institution have agreed to the schedule, it shall not be adjusted. The suggested schedule is as follows:

Day 1: Coach upon arrival: news conference at airport, team hotel or other location identified by the bowl. (Coaches and student-athletes also have the option to participate in brief interviews upon arrival at the airport.)

Day 2: Team A offensive coordinator and selected starting offensive players, Team B defensive coordinator and selected starting defensive players at media hotel. (Suggested times are 8:30 a.m. for Team A and at 9:30 a.m. for Team B.)

Day 3: Team A defensive coordinator and selected starting defensive players and Team B offensive coordinator and selected starting offensive players at media hotel. (Suggested times are 8:30 a.m. for Team B and 9:30 a.m. for Team A.)

Note: The student-athletes who accompany the coaches to the news conferences on Day 2 and Day 3 must include the starting quarterback, leading tackler, all major national award winners and first- team All-Americans.

Day 4: *Media day at stadium or other location chosen by the bowl: all coaches and student-athletes, (Student-athletes shall wear game jerseys. Suggested times are home team from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. and visiting team from 11 a.m. to noon.)

The head coach and four student-athletes will sit on risers on the field. Other student-athletes will sit in the stands. Teams have the option to take a team photo on the field before or after the interviews.

Day 5: Six to eight selected student-athletes available after practice. (Final student-athlete availability.)

Day 6: Head coaches at media hotel. (Suggested times are home team at 8:30 a.m., visiting team at 9 a.m.)

Day 7: Game Day.

Day 8: *Head coach of winning team and offensive and defensive players-of-the-game (if from the same team) at media hotel. The following trophies will be presented: AFCA, Football Writers, Associated Press and National Football Foundation. (Suggested time is 10-11 a.m.)

* Indicates required at national championship game, optional at other bowls. If the bowl opts not to conduct media day, then it is suggested that the activities on Day 2 and Day 3 take place on Days 3 and 4.

NEWS CONFERENCES, POST-GAME

Representatives of each team shall participate in a news conference after the game.

Pre-Game Designation. Before the game, the coach shall designate a minimum of two starters to report to the interview room immediately after the cooling-off period ends. The media coordinator will distribute the names of these individuals to the media before the end of the game. The media coordinator may also require that non-designated student-athletes join or replace a representative in the designated group should the athletes' performances merit it.

Obligation of the Coach. Regardless of any personal regular-season radio or television contracts, the coach is first obligated to all media staffing the game and must report to the interview room immediately after the cooling-off period ends. After fulfilling this commitment to the media staffing the game, the coach and student-athletes may participate in other interviews.

The coach may not delay a post-game interview with the covering media to conduct a program for a single newspaper, radio, online or television reporter or Internet site, unless requested to grant a short interview by the national television rightsholder or the radio network as noted herein.

Order of Appearance. The losing coach and players shall be scheduled in the interview room before the winning coach and players.

Timing. The scoreboard operator shall start the clock at 20 minutes when the postgame trophy presentation ends. After 20 minutes, the winning team's representatives will be escorted to the locker room and interview room.

Television and Radio Rightsholders, Post-Game. If requested, the winning coach, losing coach and winning student-athletes shall grant post-game interviews, not to exceed four minutes, to the rightsholding television and/or the rightsholding radio networks, provided the networks are still providing live coverage from the facility. The media coordinator, not the television or radio network, will be responsible for terminating the four-minute interview period.

The rightsholding television network will have the first choice of individuals to interview, then the rightsholding radio networks.

The networks cannot inordinately delay the coaches' and student-athletes' return to the locker room. If the networks are not prepared to conduct live interviews immediately, it will be necessary for the interviews to be taped. Any interview with the losing coach should be conducted off the field, near the locker room.

HISTORY OF THE BCS

The Bowl Championship Series, now in its 12th year of existence, was designed to preserve and nurture the rich traditions and many benefits of the bowl system, while providing a means for the nation's two highest-ranked teams to play annually in a bowl game.

To understand how the BCS developed, it is necessary to understand something of the history of the bowl system. Although the bowl system has existed since 1902 (even predating the creation of the NCAA), the bowls blossomed after World War II. As the bowl games grew over the years, a number of conferences individually developed close relationships with certain bowl committees and began to send their champions to a particular bowl game annually. The most noted of these relationships is the arrangement between the Big Ten and Pacific-10 Conferences and the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Association for the Rose Bowl game. Also, for example, the Southeastern, Big Eight, and Southwest Conferences developed similar relationships with the Sugar, Orange, and Cotton Bowls, respectively.

These relationships proved valuable to both the individual bowls and the conferences. A berth in a particular bowl became the reward for a conference championship. The close ties between institutions in a conference and a particular bowl encouraged fans to travel to the host city and helped the bowls develop solid economic bases, from which they have supported an abundance of educational, charitable, and community initiatives. By the early 1990s, conference-bowl affiliation arrangements had become a vital part of college football. They have proved to be so valuable and useful that they extend well beyond the five BCS bowls and encompass teams other than conference champions. Virtually all of the existing bowl games have individually negotiated affiliation agreements with particular conferences.

Before the BCS, however, the prevalence of affiliation arrangements between conference and bowls usually precluded matchups between the No. 1 and No. 2 teams because the champion of one conference might be committed to participate in one bowl game and the champion of another conference might be committed to play in another game. Only eight times from 1946 until 1991 were the bowls able to pair the two highest-ranked teams.

That limitation of the bowl system became more pronounced in the early 1990s because there was substantial conference expansion. Before then, a number of highly regarded programs played as independents and could participate in any bowl game that invited them. In the early 1990s, however, all of those teams except Notre Dame became members of conferences. And so the ability of any single bowl committee to pair the top two teams declined.

To increase the chances of a matchup between the top two teams in a bowl game, in 1992 several conferences and Notre Dame, along with four bowl committees, developed the Bowl Coalition arrangement. The Coalition did not alter any of the then-existing conference-bowl affiliation arrangements. Instead, the Coalition's major innovation was the creation of a selection procedure among four bowl games – the Cotton, Fiesta, Orange, and Sugar Bowls – to enhance the chances that the two highest-ranked teams would meet. The Gator and John Hancock (Sun) Bowls later joined the Coalition arrangement.

Given its narrow parameters and aims, the Coalition arrangement was quite successful, pairing the top two teams in the nation in a bowl game in two of the three years it existed. But it had limitations. It could not, for example, pair the champions of the Big Eight and SEC in any bowl game. Likewise, because neither the Big Ten nor the Pac-10 champions participated in the Coalition, the arrangement could not pair either of those teams with an opponent from another conference. It was clear, therefore, that the Coalition arrangement, while helpful, could never guarantee a matchup between No. 1 and No. 2. The Coalition agreement ended after the bowl games of January 1995 at the same time that a number of the existing conference and bowl affiliation agreements expired. The end of the affiliation arrangements presented another opportunity to increase the likelihood of a season-ending bowl pairing of the top two teams. The result was the Bowl Alliance.

The Alliance arrangement involved the champions of the ACC, Big East, Big 12, and SEC, and three bowl games – the Fiesta, Orange, and Sugar Bowls. The Alliance existed for three years--covering the bowl games of January 1996, 1997, and 1998. Like the Coalition arrangement, the Alliance created a selection structure for the participating bowls. Each year one of the three Alliance bowls had the right to select the first two teams from a pool of eligible teams consisting of Notre Dame; the champions of the ACC, Big East, Big 12, and SEC; other conference champions if those conferences chose to participate in the arrangement, and highly ranked non-champions from any conference. None of the participating conference champions were committed to play in any bowl game as they had been in the past under the conference-bowl affiliation arrangements. This selection procedure permitted the Alliance bowls to match conference champions in games that would not have been played under the previous conference-bowl affiliation arrangements. For example, after the 1995 regular season, the Alliance arrangement created a national championship game between the only two unbeaten teams in the nation: Nebraska, champion of the Big Eight, and Florida, champion of the SEC.

Like the Coalition, however, the Alliance had limitations. Neither the Big Ten nor the Pac-10 champion was committed to play in one of the Alliance bowls because of their conferences' relationship with the Rose Bowl game. As the Alliance arrangement neared its end, it became clear that any attempt to further increase the likelihood of creating an annual national championship game would have to include the Big Ten and Pac-10 champions.

In 1996, several conferences began discussions about the possibility of integrating the Big Ten and Pac-10 champions into a bowl arrangement that would allow for an annual pairing of the top two teams in the nation. To make that arrangement possible, the Big Ten, Pac-10, and Rose Bowl game agreed that under certain circumstances, the Big Ten and/or Pac-10 champions would not play their traditional game in Pasadena on New Year's Day. Similarly, the Rose Bowl game agreed to host a national championship game in rotation with the other bowls. The three bowls that had participated in the Alliance arrangement enthusiastically supported the new approach, and thus was born the BCS. Beginning in 1999, the bowl system could, for the first time in its nearly 100-year history, promise the fans of college football an annual pairing between the top two teams.

A fifth BCS game was added to the yearly rotation beginning with the bowl games of January 2007. Each bowl game, during a four-year period, plays host to its own game as well as to the BCS National Championship Game, with roughly a week between games.

The BCS arrangement has provided numerous benefits to college football and its fans. It has paired teams in national championship games that would not have been possible under the bowl arrangements existing before its creation. It has enhanced the regular season. It has contributed to the growth of the bowl system in general, to the benefit of every Football Bowl Subdivision school. And it has enhanced opportunities for teams from all Bowl Subdivision conferences to participate in the Fiesta, Orange, Rose, and Sugar Bowls.

EXPLANATION: Team percentages are derived by dividing a team's actual ranking points by a maximum 2825 possible points in the Harris Interactive Poll and 1525 possible points in the USA Today/ESPN Coaches Poll. Poll Average - Team percentages calculated by dividing a team's actual ranking points by a maximum 2825 possible points in the Harris Interactive Poll and 1525 possible points in the USA Today/ESPN Coaches Poll. Computer Average - Six computer rankings calculated in inverse points order (25 for #1, 24 for #2, etc.) are used to determine the overall computer component. The best and worst ranking for each team is dropped, and the remaining four are added and divided by 100 (the maximum possible points) to produce a Computer Rankings Percentage. The six computer ranking providers are Anderson & Hester, Richard Billingsley, Colley Matrix, Kenneth Massey, Jeff Sagarin, and Peter Wolfe. Each computer ranking accounts for schedule strength in its formula.

EXPLANATION:

Pool Average - Team percentages are derived by dividing a team's actual ranking points by a maximum 2825 possible points in the Harris Interactive Poll and 1525 possible points in the USA Today/ESPN Coaches Poll.
 Computer Average - Six computer rankings calculated in inverse points order (25 for #1, 24 for #2, etc.) are used to determine the overall computer component.
 The best and worst ranking for each team is dropped, and the remaining four are added and divided by 100 (the maximum possible points) to produce a Computer Rankings Percentage. The six computer ranking providers are Anderson & Hester, Richard Billingsley, Colley, Matrix, Kenneth Massey, Jeff Sagarin, and Peter Wolfe. Each computer ranking accounts for schedule strength in its formula.
 BCS Average - The BCS Average is calculated by averaging the percent totals of the Harris Interactive, USA Today Coaches and Computer polls.

Poll Average - Team percentages are derived by dividing a team's actual ranking points by a maximum 2825 possible points in the Harris Interactive Poll and 1525 possible points in the USA Today/ESPN Coaches Poll.
 Computer Average - Six computer rankings calculated in inverse points order (25 for #1, 24 for #2, etc.) are used to determine the overall computer component.
 The best and worst ranking for each team is dropped, and the remaining four are added and divided by 100 (the maximum possible points) to produce a Computer Rankings Percentage. The six computer ranking providers are Anderson & Hester, Richard Billingsley, Colley Matrix, Kenneth Massey, Jeff Sagarin, and Peter Wolfe. Each computer ranking accounts for schedule strength in its formula.
 BCS Average - The BCS Average is calculated by averaging the percent totals of the Harris Interactive, USA Today Coaches and Computer polls.

EXPLANATION:

Poll Average - Average of the AP Media Poll and USA Today/ESPN Coaches Poll. Others receiving votes calculated in order received.
 Computer Average - Average of Anderson & Hester, Richard Billingsley, Colley Matrix, Kenneth Massey, New York Times, Jeff Sagarin's USA Today and the Peter Wolfe rankings. The computer component will be determined by averaging six of the seven rankings.
 The lowest (worst) computer ranking will be disregarded.
 Schedule Rank - Rank of schedule strength compared to other Division I-A teams of actual games played divided by 25. This component is calculated by determining the cumulative win/loss records of the team's opponent (66.23 percent) and the cumulative win/loss records of the team's opponents' opponents (33 1/3 percent).
 Losses - One point for each loss during the season.
 Quality Win Component - The quality win component will reward to varying degrees teams that defeat opponents ranked among the top 10 in the weekly standings. The bonus point scale will range from a high of 1.0 points for a win over the top ranked team to a low of 0.1 for a victory over the 10th-ranked BCS team. The BCS Standings at the end of the season will determine final quality win points. If a team registers a victory over a team more than once during the regular season, quality points will be awarded just once. Quality win points are based on the standings determined by the subtotal. The final standings are reconfigured to reflect the quality win point deduction.

 Schedule Rank - Rank of schedule strength compared to other Division I-A teams of actual games played divided by 25. This component is calculated by determining the cumulative won/loss records of the team's opponent (66 2/3 percent) and the cumulative won/loss records of the team's opponents' opponents (33 1/3 percent).
 Losses - One point for each loss during the season.

Quality Win Component - The quality win component will reward to varying degrees teams that defeat opponents ranked among the top 10 in the weekly standings. The bonus point scale will range from a high of 1.0 points for a win over the top ranked team to a low of 0.1 for a victory over the 10th-ranked BCS team. The BCS Standings at the end of the season will determine final quality win points. If a team registers a victory over a team more than once during the regular season, quality points will be awarded just once. Quality win points are based on the standings determined by the subtotal. The final standings are reconfigured to reflect the quality win point deduction.

Poll Average - Average of USA Today/ESPN Coaches and AP Media Polls.

Computer Average - Average of The Anderson & Hester/Seattle Times, Jeff Sagarin's USA Today and New York Times rankings. In order to prevent unusual differences in individual formulas, a maximum adjusted deviation of no greater than 50 percent of the average of the two lowest computer rankings is utilized. In cases of adjusted deviation, the high score will become no lower than the middle score. Raw scores in parenthesis next to adjusted scores.

Quartile Rank - Rank of schedule strength compared to other Division I-A teams of actual games played divided by 25. This component is calculated by determining the cumulative win/loss records of the team's opponent (66.6 percent) and the cumulative win/loss records of the teams' opponents' opponents (33.3 percent).

Losses: One point for each loss during the season.

TOM MICKLE INTERNSHIP PROGRAM

The Football Bowl Subdivision conferences and institutions sponsor the Tom Mickle BCS Internship in the office of the bowl that will host the national championship game each year. The program, currently in its fourth year, is intended as an opportunity for a young person to become involved in administering the event. It honors the memory of Mr. Mickle, who made many contributions to college football in general and to the development of the BCS in particular.

Tom Mickle

At the time of his passing, Mickle was the executive director of Florida Citrus Sports, host of the Capital One Bowl and the Champs Sports Bowl. Prior to his appointment at Florida Citrus Sports in 2002, he was an associate commissioner at the Atlantic Coast Conference and had also been an assistant athletics director at Duke University.

This year's Tom Mickle Intern is Andrew Tanker, a native of Rockville, Md., who is a 2006 graduate of NC State University with a degree in Media Communications. Tanker, who also worked in the FedEx Orange Bowl office for the FedEx Orange Bowl and the 2009 National Championship Game, is working in the Tournament of Roses office this year as it prepares to host the Citi BCS National Championship Game on January 7, 2010.
