

PITTSBURGH

When you talk about the best teams never to win the NCAA Tournament, Pittsburgh deserves to be part of the conversation. Of course, that doesn't mean the Panthers have never won a national championship. But if the 1928 and '30 titles are little consolation to modern Pitt fans frustrated by their team's inability to reach the NCAA Final, they can always take solace in rooting for the Big East team with the most wins since 2002-03-and hope it portends a March Madness breakthrough.

BEST TEAM: 1927-28 Doc Carlson's squad was the only Pitt team to finish a season with an undefeated record, which earned them the Helms Foundation National Championship (awarded retroactively for the 1900-01 through '40-41 seasons). All-America sophomore Charley "Chuck" Hyatt preserved the perfect campaign on Feb. 18, 1928, when he took a pass from Paul Zehfuss and nailed a last-second basket to defeat Notre Dame, 24-22. It was Pittsburgh's only lead of the game.

BEST PLAYER: F/C CHARLES SMITH (1984-88) While Hyatt is the best Panther before 1950, Smith stands tallest as Pitt's best player in the tougher Big East era. The smooth, versatile big man helped return the Panthers to the national spotlight in 1987-88, earning conference Player of the Year honors and leading his team to its first outright

Big East regular-season championship. Smith started all 122 games in his four years, becoming Pitt's all-time leading scorer with 2,045 points.

BEST COACH: HENRY "Doc" CARLSON (1922-53) Colorful and innovative, Carlson earned a medical degree from Pitt before playing a season of pro football for the Cleveland Indians. Doc administered oxygen to players on the bench, presumably fueling them to run his figure-8 offense on the court. Whatever works. In 31 years at Pitt, Carlson coached two Helms national title teams (in 1927-28 and '29-30) and guided the Panthers to the NCAA national semifinals in 1941.

GAME FOR THE AGES: On Feb. 28, 1940, Pittsburgh defeated Fordham, 57-37, at Madison Square Garden in the first college basketball game to be televised (with a single camera). Same venue, 67 years later: Pitt pulled off a 65-64 overtime thriller over Duke as native New Yorker Levance Fields drained a three-pointer with 4.7 seconds left.

HEARTBREAKER: Many Pitt fans were convinced 2008-09 was their year. The Panthers tied a school record with 31 wins and were seeded No. 1 in the Tournament for the first time. But Villanova dashed those title hopes in the Elite Eight. After Fields' free throws with 5.5 seconds left tied the game at 76, Nova guard Scottie Reynolds hit a floater to send the Panthers packing, 78-76.

FIERCEST RIVAL: Pitt's rivalry with West Virginia started on the gridiron in 1895. But the hardwood version of the Backyard Brawl is nearly as colorful.

At WVU in 1948, a Mountaineers fan dumped a bucket of water on Carlson from the balcony. The next year, the coach wore rain gear and Pitt pulled out a last-second OT win that snapped West Virginia's 57-game home winning streak. WVU leads overall, 94-84.

FANFARE AND HOOPLA: The Pitt student section is now known as the Oakland Zoo, named after the neighborhood where the school is located. But at the Fitzgerald Field House, the Panthers' former home, the Field House Fanatics cheerfully recorded opponent's losses on fake tombstones.

FAN FAVORITE: F JEROME LANE (1985-88) His glass-shattering dunk on Jan. 25 1988, in a home game against Providence sent Pitt fans into a frenzy, delayed the game for 32 minutes, and led to TV analyst Bill Raftery introducing "Send it in, Jerome," to the basketball lexicon.
