Junior Punter Drew Kaser

(On being invited to SEC Media Days)

“It’s an honor being here, and there is not too many punters and specialists that come to SEC Media Days, but it just lets me know that Coach Sumlin believes in me being a leader on the team and being a voice on the team as well.”

(On his style of kicking)

“With punting, I consider myself a little hybrid. I watch a lot film on a lot of different guys, and I believe my punting style, my swing, is a little different. A lot of punters are the same. You have the same basics, with my soccer background all my life and everything. I believe that I have a different aspect, different technique and with the rocket, half-rugby style punt that we do, I think that that kind of plays a factor too.”

(On Jeff Banks being Special Teams Coordinator)

“Having Coach Banks is huge. He’s punted and kicked in college, so he knows what we’ve been through. Having him is big for me. We’ll be standing there warming up for practice, and if I don’t hit a good punt for a couple of punts in a row, we’ll be there talking and we’ll figure it out in about five or ten seconds. During warm-ups and throughout meetings, he’s very critical of me because he’s been through it all and he knows what’s successful and what’s not.”
