What UCF transfers mean to Georgia and Coach Katie Abrahamson-Henderson

“What it means for Georgia is that it’s a new culture, Abe [Katie Abrahamson-Henderson] is bringing in her type of style of defense and everything like that. I think that what it means for the coach, is that players are loving, they love her, they trust her, they trust what she is doing and how development is as a player. I think that its huge that so many players came from UCF to follow her to Georgia.”

Can you talk about the opportunity change brings for the program and returning players?

“I think the goal and the dynamic of everything is to win. That’s the stable thing that is keeping me sticking in it and listening to the coaches and being very coachable.”
